TWO WOMEN STOP MAN'S FUNERAL

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 24.—(UP)—Funeral arrangements for a supposed hit-run victim were delayed today while police and relatives tried to straighten out the tangle resulting from two women claiming him as their husband. The victim, Marcus Hunter, 37, was found beside the Worcester-Grafton Highway late Saturday night, apparently the victim of a hit-run motorist. In East Brookfield, Mrs. Frances Gillis Hunter told police she married Hunter in New York in December 1935. Subsequently he deserted her, she said.

In Worcester, Mrs. James Durvon said Hunter's real name was James Durvon, whom she married in Cambridgeport, Mass., in 1929. She said the Brookfield Mrs. Hunter could not be "Marc's wife."

"There must be some mistake," she said. "My husband and I were devoted and were never separated."

Southbury Bund Fight Explained In Detail

True Story of What Has or Is Happening in That Township Over German Picnic Grounds Is Given By Democrat Today

BY FRANKLIN FARNHAM
Southbury, November 24.—Here's the true story of what is happening, what has happened in this old New England town where protest agitated by summer residents has been snatched from obscurity of comment to front-page speculation by the press of the state, all concerning the purchase of 178 acres in Kettletown by the German-American Bund, so-called Nazi organization.

1. The town of Southbury has taken no official stand against the proposed camp.

2. A zoning commission was voted and its membership named yesterday at a special town meeting at which no mention was made of the Bund camp.

3. The zoning ordinance is expected to have no bearing upon the establishment of the Bund camp.

Poor Publicity
All of which failed of stress today in the Waterbury Republican and other state papers which have seized the "protest" of one or two individuals as theme for agitation, in the opinion of the Southbury town officials. These newspapers first Selectman J. Edward Coe said today, have published only the partisan stand of a group chosen by themselves as mouthpieces to cause the Bund camp to become a cause celebre, creating friction between neighbors, calling into staid Southbury sensation-seekers from every part of the state and from New York.

But the tempest in Kettletown was still today, save for a "resolution" subscribed to by thirty-three, by possibly a few more others, of the audience which attempted a latterly "meeting of protest" which followed the zoning meeting. This "resolution" called upon the "President, Senate, Representatives in Congress, the governor, . . . to abate, dispel, destroy, . . . this menace to our constituted government."

Protest Surprises
Nothing of this came before the official town meeting and nothing of this has been presented to the town officials. The "protest," according to town officials, was a surprise at its source inasmuch as George R. Holmes, erstwhile building contractor, "hasn't been in the public eye in Southbury much," the selectmen agreed. It was Mr. Holmes who

WIDE CHASE FOR SLAYER OF ERBE

Body Found in Southington Home Yesterday Badly Mutilated

Southington, Conn., Nov. 24.—(UP)—Aided by possible fingerprints and footprint clues, operatives of the state's attorney's office, cooperating with state and local police, today spread a wide hunt for the assailant of Charles D. Erbe, 66, whose body was found badly mutilated yesterday on the floor of his home. Ten wounds were counted on Erbe's skull during an autopsy performed by Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello, Hartford, and Dr. William T. Nagle, local official.

Furnishings throughout Erbe's home, where he lived alone following death of his wife several years ago, were in disarray, a window was smashed, and four gas jets in a kitchen stove were open when Joseph D. Erbe, assistant town postmaster and son of the slain man, discovered the body. Bloody fingerprints and footprints were found on walls and floors throughout the dwelling, police reported. Authorities believed Erbe's assailant was surprised while burglarizing the house early yesterday and grappled with the elderly night fireman in a local brass works. Erbe's pockets were turned out, police said, and bureau drawers and closets were ransacked.

BIG POLICE SQUAD ARRESTS 12 STRIKERS

Affiliate of CIO Ordered Strike; Gov. Murphy Warns Labor

BY GEORGE D. CRISSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
St. Louis, November 24.—(UP)—Automobiles loaded with non-striking workers smashed through the picket lines of the United Automobile Workers today and entered the assembly plant of the Ford Motor Company. Pickets showered the machines with stones and the tinkling of broken glass sounded above their shouts and jeers. Thirty policemen supervising a picket line of more than 1,000 men waded in with night sticks and arrested 12 of the rock throwers for disturbing the peace. Some of the machines, after depositing their loads of workers inside the plant, raced out again after more non-striking, forcing pickets to scatter in front of them. One automobile was stopped. A policeman sprained a leg preventing the pickets from turning it over.

Outbreak of Violence
The outbreak of violence came at the zero hour of the strike called against Ford by the United Automobile Workers, an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, last night. The day shift had been scheduled to report at 7 a. m. (8 a. m. EST) after a smaller shift to put the plant in order for the day's work had managed to get through the lines at 5 a. m.

REVERE MURDER CAUSING DREAD

May Be Reprisal Shootings Over Killing of Louis Gaeta

Revere, Mass., Nov. 24.—(UP)—Reprisal shootings were feared today in the wake of the murder of Louis Gaeta, 44, Revere racket czar.

Underworld sources revealed a scramble for the vacant leadership of Gaeta's race betting syndicate, which netted a monthly profit of $60,000 to $100,000.

A former chieftain of the syndicate, deposed by Gaeta several months ago, was sought by police for the murder who pumped four bullets into Gaeta's body yesterday and escaped in a sedan.

Also sought for questioning was a henchman of the supposed slayer. Besides revenge, another motive for the murder was suggested in disclosure that only recently Gaeta had extended his North Shore operations into Boston, opening a Mattapan branch.

Conn. Woman Witness
A Connecticut woman and a Revere man, both of whose names were withheld, were believed the only witnesses who could identify the slayer. The woman remained voluntarily at police headquarters.
